

The 2014 Library Book Award

From 94 entries, a shortlist of six

The American Library in Paris received more than twice the 2013 number of submissions for the second year of the award, which honors the most distinguished book of the year, written in English, about France or the French-American encounter.

From this list of 94 works, submitted by authors and publishers, a Paris screening committee selected a shortlist of six books, highlighted below in red. The list has now been presented to the 2014 jury: Alice Kaplan, Sebastian Faulks, and Pierre Assouline, all members of the Library's Writers Council.

Their choice of a winning book will be announced in November in the presence of the author at a ceremony in Paris. The $5,000 prize is underwritten by a generous gift from the Florence Gould Foundation, and the ceremony receives additional support from The de Groot Foundation.

All the books on the list below are now in the American Library's circulating collection and available for checkout by members.

Remembering last year's Library Book Award

The American Library in Paris Book Award 2013

was presented on 15 November 2013 to

Embers of War: The Fall of an Empire and the Making of America's Vietnam

By Fredrik Logevall

Random House

The jury for the award -- Diane Johnson, Adam Gopnik, and Julian Barnes -- cited the book for its "scholarly elegance and fascinating contribution to history, its thematic relevance for an American institution in France, and its cautionary pertinence at the present."

The $5,000 award, for the best book of the year in English about France or the French-American encounter, was created in 2012 with a generous gift to the American Library in Paris from the Florence Gould Foundation. The jury every year is drawn from the membership of the Library's Writers Council.

Other books on the 2013 shortlist are:

The Illusion of Separateness, by Simon van Booy

Cezanne: A Life, by Alex Danchev

The Black Count: Glory, Revolution, Betrayal, and the Real Count of Monte Cristo, by Tom Reiss

How the French Invented Love: Nine Hundred Years of Passion and Romance, by Marilyn Yalom

Nominations for the 2014 American Library in Paris Book Award are now open to books published since July 1, 2013 or scheduled for publication before June 30, 2014.
