Happy Holidays from the Library

Happy Holidays!

We'd like to thank you - our members, volunteers, and donors - for choosing the Library during 2010 and again in 2011. Your presence in the reading room, your attendance at programs, your membership renewals, your volunteering, and your gifts - all these make the American Library in Paris the living institution that it is. The staff and trustees wish you a joyful holiday season.

Introduction to spelling bees

Join us for an introduction to spelling

bees and learn more about the 2011 Paris

Whenever The Library of America issues its latest handsome editions, described in The New York Times Book Review as the "quasi-official national canon" of American literature, patrons of the American Library in Paris share in the treasure, thanks to a regular gift made possible by the Florence Gould Foundation, of a collection now surpassing 200 volumes.

The latest arrivals are compendiums of the work of Philip Roth, Saul Bellow, John Kenneth Galbraith, and H. L. Mencken. They join an impressive bookshelf of finely-produced and sagely-edited volumes that range from Mark Twain to John Updike, from war reporting to political oratory, from Flannery O'Connor to Dashiell Hammett, Wallace Stevens from to Philip K. Dick. Please sample their best in The Library of America!
