Curbside Lending Continues
Déjà-vu? Librarian Bojan Kupirović (right) prepares books for our new curbside lending service (the first step in our progressive deconfinement), just as his long-ago predecessor (left, possibly Frederic "Freddie" Hawkins) wrapped books for the Library's Soldiers' Service in 1940. The Library managed to send over 100,000 books and magazines to Allied soldiers, hospitals, prisoners, and internment camps before the Soldiers' Service ceased when Paris was occupied.

Today, we're busy wrapping parcels of new reading material for our members, and it's been an absolute pleasure to see those of you who have come by so far. We currently have 10,000 books out, and we imagine that many of you would love to get your hands on new reading material after a long confinement. Visit our curbside lending webpage and follow the instructions to request books in the catalog and make an appointment. Appointments fill up quickly, so don't delay! And don’t forget to bring a bag, your Library card, and a required mask to your appointment. You can return books without a reservation, Tuesday–Friday, 2pm–5:30pm.

All returning books are quarantined before being put back into circulation.
For detailed information about curbside lending and our health and safety measures, please visit our website and read the instructions and FAQ's.

The Library's facilities remain closed presently, and all programs continue virtually.

Please email info@americanlibraryinparis.org with any questions.

Virtual Evenings with an Author

All programs, including Evenings with an Author, book groups, and workshops, will continue virtually for the present time.

Dana Thomas
Wednesday 20 May at 17h via Facebook Live

Free and open to the public via Facebook Live.
No RSVP required.
Simply head to our Facebook page to tune in live at 17h on Wednesday 20 May.

(The event will be recorded and a video will be available for viewing after the event.)
Anissa Bouziane
Tuesday 26 May at 17h via Zoom

Please join us for an informal conversation with author Anissa M. Bouziane. Anissa was born in Tennessee, daughter of a Moroccan father and a French mother. She grew up in Morocco, but returned to the US to attend Wellesley College, and went on to earn an MFA in fiction writing from Columbia University. Her debut novel, Dune Song, is rooted in her experience of witnessing the collapse of the Twin Towers.

Free and open to the public via Zoom.
RSVP required to receive meeting details and password.

Mark Mayer
Tuesday 2 June at 17h via Zoom

An exploration of distance (and social distance) in the literary imagination. Part craft talk, part Zoom performance, part lecture on literature, part creative self-help for the quarantined. Mark Mayer has an MFA from the Iowa Writers’ Workshop and a PhD from the University of Denver. His first book, Aerialists, won the Michener-Copernicus Prize, and his stories have been published in American Short Fiction, the Kenyon Review, Guernica, and the Iowa Review. He is an Assistant Professor of Fiction Writing in the University of Memphis MFA program.

Free and open to the public via Zoom.
RSVP required to receive meeting details and password.

Champs-Élysées Film Festival

Every year we partner with the Champs-Élysées Film Festival to share their program of French and American independent films with our members. This June, with cinemas closed, the Festival is all online and all free to watch in France. The program will be announced Wednesday 20 May, and we encourage you to explore their lineup. It's an amazing opportunity to discover emerging independent filmmakers, for free!

American Libraries Magazine
The Library is thrilled to be the cover story in the American Library Association's May issue of American Libraries magazine. The article, "We'll Always Have the American Library in Paris," celebrates our 100 years of rich history and our ongoing mission. Click on the cover image to link to the full article.
